

Winter's here and while it's getting colder outside - inside the kitchen is heating up!

This July, have some friends over for a roast and fundraise for The Royal Children's Hospital Cystic Fibrosis Research Trust.

The idea for The Big Roast came to founder Kirsty Bowness when her four-year-old daughter, Grace referred to cystic fibrosis as "65 Roasters." Touched by Grace's first acknowledgement of the condition that affects both herself and five-year-old brother Liam, Kirsty and her husband Stephen hope to give Grace her "65 Roasters" by inspiring 65 or more participants to enjoy a roast dinner with friends and raise money for cystic fibrosis research.

What do you need to take part in The Big Roast?
A cosy venue, a roast dinner and hungry and charitable dinner guests.

It's as simple as that! For more information or to register your event, visit:
